Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

There is cheering news in the fact that Seafarers Union has decided not to strike. The news regarding their return to work while their preposterous claims are mediated fails to state the reason for this abrupt change of heart. It is obvious, however, that they changed their minds after the President had ordered three of the ships to be manned by what, in the "good old days" used to be called "strike breakers." Of course, when the government in dire extremity resorts to this practice, it isn't called by that ugly name. At any rate the twenty-three ships involved were loaded and dispatched. Uncle Sam's defense efforts are not balked in this instance by a radical labor organization.

We think the President must have been in a desperate state of mind when he declared that those ships must, and would sail. It is decision he has made which indicates that he is becoming "fed up" with the malicious antics of organized and debauched abor organizations. The first was in California ,when he ordered the U. S. Army to take over a struck airplane manufacturing plant.

It is such action as this that brings home to Americans the menacing world conditions we face. The extremity is such that our easy going president acts. As commander in chief of the Army and the Navy, the President has now served notice on all those who would obstruct our defense program, that he will stand no more nonsense. The Army and Navy are at hand to break strikes that threaten the country's security. The fair haired child has kicked papa's shins once too often. When the child throws a tantrum now, it is not the learned doctor that is called. It is: "Nurse, bring me the strap."

Whether these decisions herald the day when there will be real co-operation and coordination among both employers and employess, whether as a matter of choice, or necessity, is perhaps doubtful. It was only a few months ago that the President declared that we could maintain our "social gains" and at the same time make an all-out defense effort. This was extremely good news to left-wingers everywhere. Times have changed since that light-hearted remark. The sailors in this recent instance have been denied some of their freedom of action. They cannot maintain their social gains when there is involved the scuttling of the country's shipping. The air craft workers have learned the same lesson. A strike vote, overwhemingly in the affirmative, has been taken in one of the largest plants in the United States. at San Diego. But there is no strike. Work continues pending mediation.

One thing about recent mediation results is not yet clear in anything this writer has read concerning it. There was the case of the big building concern which turned over its plant to the government rather than acquiesce in the union's demand for a closed shop and the check off system, as recommended by the Mediation Board. Now, when the government finally took over this plant, did the government, or the Navy agree to the union demands? We would like to know. For there is a principle involved that affects the fundamental liberty of every citizen. Must a man join a union in order to work and in order to live? If so we would all like to know about it. But not a word has crept into print, or least none that we have seen, regarding the working agreement the Navy has with the shipbuilding unions in that particular ship yard.

We do not believe that the great majority of Americans wish to see the socialization of industry, government cartels, labor union control of manufacturing or agriculture, collective farming, or collective anything else. We do believe that the great majority still has faith in competitive free enterprise, individual initiative, and freedom of opportunity, all restricted whenever necessary by such governmental regulations as are needed to assure that these things are denied to none.

Two Councilmen, Acting As Taxpayers, File Suit Against Other Trustees

NEVADA CITY ENTRIES IN HORSE SHOW, MINERAL, POULTRY, FLOWER AND AGRICULTURAL DISPLAYS WALK OFF WITH PRIZES

Three members of the city council, Benjamin Hall, Robert Nve and Irvine Seamon, Clerk George H .Calanan, Treasurer Emma Foley and City Superintendent of Streets Herbert Hallett are named defendants in an injunction and accounting action filed in the superior court here Saturday by Councilman Frank Davies and John R. Ivey.

Councilmen Davies and Ivey seek an injunction restraining the defendants from continuing the street widening work on North Pine and York Streets.

It is charged in the action that the expenditures required for the improvement exceeded the sum of $500 and, in accordance with Section 874 of Article 111 of Chapter VII of the statutes of 1883 as amended, the work could be authorized and performed only by contract let to the lowest responsible bidder, after notice given inviting bids. It is set forth the council is and at all times vested with the exclusive power to authorize the improvement and to call for bids.

"The said proposed work of improvement," the suit reads, "has not at any time been voted upon by the council nor have bids been received by council for the performance of the work, nor has notice been published in accordance with the terms of the statute inviting bids to be made for the work of improvement, and no contract has been entered into between the said City of Nevada and any contractor for the performance of said work.

"That notwithstanding the fact that said program of improvement has not been acted upon by the said City Council, and not withstanding the fact that no bids for said improvement have been invited, or received, and nothwithstanding the fact that no contract has been entered into as required by law, plaintiffs are informed and believe, and therefore allege, that defendants, Benjamin Hall, Robert Nye and Irvine Seaman, purporting to act as members of the said council, but without any authorization from said council or at all, have instructed and caused defendant, Herbert Hallett, and other agents and employees of said city to begin the said work of improvement, and to purchase the materials or supplies necessary therefor in the open market and to perform the said work by day labor, all in violation of the provisions of the said statutes hereinabove referred to.

"That in accordance with said instructions said defendant, Herbert Hallett and other employees and agents of the said city have commenced said work of improvement and are now continuing the same, through the employment of day labor and through the purchase of materials therefor on the open market, and plaintiffs are informed and believe, and therefore allege, that the expense of said work is being made a charge upon and is being paid out of the funds of the said City of Nevada to the damage and prejudice of the plaintiffs as taxpayers therein as hereinabove set forth.

"Plaintiffs are further informed and believe that unless enjoined by an order of the court, said work will be continued in violation of the provisions of law, hereinabove set forth, and that unless enjoined by the order of this court warrants for the payment of the expense of said work will be approved by defendants herein, and will be presented to defendant, Emma Foley, as treasurer of the said City of Nevada, and that said treasurer will thereupon pay out the moneys of said city in discharge of the said warrants."

Plaintiffs Davies and Ivey seek the following:

1. "That the court issue its order to show cause directed to defendants herein, and to their agents, representatives and employees requiring them to show cause, if any they have, why a preiminary injunction should not be issued herein enjoining and restraining said defendants, their agents, representatives and employees from continuing the work or improvement herein referred to and restraining and enjoining said defendants from permitting or causing the expense of said work from becoming a charge or liability against the funds of the said City of Nevada and enjoining and restraining the said defendants, and each of them, from paying the expense of said work from or out of the said city funds.

"2. That upon the trial of this action said preliminary injunction be made final and permanent.

"3. That defendants be required to account for all moneys heretofore expended in connection with the improvements herein mentioned which may have been paid from funds belonging to the said City of Nevada.

"4. That plaintiffs be awarded their cost of suit herein and such further relief as the court may deem proper.

The suit was filed on the behalf of Davies and Ivey by Attorney H. Ward Sheldon of this city.

Rural Teachers Club Meets At Union Hill

The Nevada County Rural Teachers' Club held its first meeting of the 1941 season at Union Hill school September 27. Luncheon was served by the members of the Union Hill PTA and was highly appreciated by those who partook of it. This social hour was followed by an interesting and instructive discussion by Dr. Emmeline Banks of the Bureau of Child Hygiene, who is a field worker connected with the State Department of Public Health. She focused our minds on the child and his physical problems, which so often baffle him and his elders. A plan for closer cooperation between the teacher and the health authorities was outlined by Dr. Banks and met with unanimous approval.

At the first business meeting of the group, reports were presented and plans made for the coming season. These monthly meetings have been, and will continue to be, a source of inspiration and help to all members of the Rural Teachers' Club.

Hiscox Has Evidence To Prove He Is Better Hunter Than Sheriff

As a general rule, it is not long after deer season opens before Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen successfully brings down one or two bucks.

This year Sheriff Tobiassen was confident he could repeat past performances. He promised the Grass Valley Rifle Rod and Gun Club he would provide a buck for the club's annual stew, which will be held next week.

....Time passed. Sheriff Tobiassen had not yet obtained a buck. Some of the gun club members became fidgety and confided their nervousness to Game Warden Earl Hiscox.

"Don't you worry," said Hiscox. "I'll get your buck for you."

So Hiscox assumed the role of a hunter. He found his quarry near North Bloomfield and a well directed shot brought down a fine four point buck.

Sheriff Tobiassen looks upon the incident as a matter of luck but Hiscox has other ideas.

It is the opinion of Hiscox that Game Warden Earl Hiscox is a better hunter than Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen. Hiscox says the evidence speaks for itself.

ELIZABETH O'CONNER, 74 IS DECEASED

Sad news of the death last night in San Francisco of Elizabeth O'Connor, 74, well known former resident of this city and native of Lake City on the North San Juan Ridge, was received here today.

The body of the deceased will be brought to the Holmes Funeral Home here. Funeral services will be held from the St. Canice Catholic Church but no date for the final rites has yet been set.

Surviving relatives of the deceased include two brothers, Frank O'Connor and Charles O'Connor of Nevada City and a sister, Mrs. H. Shankwiler of San Francisco.

Fifty Percent Increase!

Thousands Attend 4th Annual Co. Fair Which Came To End Last Night

FRANK DAVIES, DR. IVEY SEEK HALT ON YORK AND PINE STREET IMPROVEMENT WORK

Marked by a 50 per cent increase in attendance over previous years, Nevada County's Fourth Annual Fair came to a close last night after a successful three day run.

The thousands attending the fair were unanimous in their praise of the event, especially the exhibits in the main Veterans Memorial Building, the flower show and the entertainment program.

Nevada City entries in the horse show, agricultural, flower and poultry exhibits as well as the mineral display walked off with a good share of the more than $8,000 awarded in prizes.

The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce took tenth place in the community booth class but spectators believed the booth was the most artistically arranged and beautiful of all the entries.

The local chamber display was an American Flag designed from apples, pears, grapes, and corn. The judges, however, were forced to follow rules governing the judging of such exhibits and the booths which had a larger variety of agricultural products grown in the county were the high winners.

The Nevada City Chamber booth was designed and arranged under the supervision of James Smith and D. J. Rafferty of the Tahoe National Forest office and H. F. Sofge, local chamber secretary.

The 17th Agricultural District directors, who had charge of the fair, spared no expense in the entertainment offered to the fair goers. Some of finest entertainment on the Pacific Coast appeared on the program and that the audience appreciated their efforts was well indicated by the tremendous applause

Nye Johnson of Nevada City, a director of the 17th district, was largely responsible for the fine entertainment program. Johnson believes excellent entertainment is one of the chief attractions of a county fair and his beliefs were well borne out by the attendance.

Johnny O'Brien, famous harmonica player, Stan Kramer, puppet master and Paul and Paulette, tramboline wizards, were especially applauded.

The mineral exhibit was attractive. Dennis Coughlan of this city won first prize for placer gold. He exhibited a $500 nugget which has been on display at state fairs and at the San Francisco Exposition.

Mrs Paul Kemper of this city is receiving praise for her handling of the flower display. Magnificent flowers grown in this county were attractively arranged by Mrs. Kemper. Considerable favorable comment was received by Mrs. Kemper for the beautifully arranged water fall in the flower room.

Nevada County entries in the horse show walked off with prizes also. Usually the prizes are dominated by outside horse owners.

At the evening performance of the horse show yesterday, the Nevada County Sheriff's Mounted Posse gave a demonstration.

Nevada County show entries included:

Sassy, owned by Miller Brothers, Nevada City; Spook, owned by Miller Brothers, Dot and Billie, owned by Beryl Granholm of Nevada City; Black Beauty, owned by Ed Granholm of Nevada City; Dusky Rose, Midnight Star, Royal Turk, owned by Mrs. Earl Aver of Grass Valley; Nugget, owned by Dennis Jones of Soda Springs; Red, owned by Harry Silva of Nevada City; Goldie, owned by Roy Granholm of Nevada City; Prince, owned by Claude Medearis of Grass Valley; Fire Fly, owned by Allen E. Newell of Grass Valley; Paul, owned by Francis George of Grass Valley; Freshy, owned by Ross Eads of Peardale; Rico, owned by Louis Le Duc of Nevada City and Red Wing, owned by Mrs Irene Ritter of Grass Valley.

The 17th Agricultural District directors and officials who had charge of the fair are:

Vernon Stoll, president; W. L. Goggin, vice president; Eben K. Smart, treasurer; Loyle Freeman, seeretary-manager; Thomas Mulcahy, U. S. N. Johnson, H. F. Sofge, J. L. Frank, John Bieber and C. Edmunds.

FINAL SERVICES FOR K. GUENTHER

Sorrowing relatives and friends gathered at the Holmes Funeral Home here yesterday afternoon to pay their last resuects to Miss Katherine Guenther, 65, well known local woman, who died in the bay region Friday after a several weeks illness.

Rev. David Ralston officiated at the final rites. Burial was in the Pine Grove Cemetery.

Mrs. Guenther was born in Nevada City. Practically her entire life was devoted to making her mother, Mrs. Mary Guenther, 92, happy.

Besides her mother, the deceased leaves three sisters, Mrs. Emma Dolan, and Mrs. Robert Allen of Nevada City and Mrs Anne Johnson of Oakland and a brother, Frank Guenther of Nevada City.

CHAMBER TO CONSIDER PLANS FOR CANTONMENT

The Nevada City Chamber of Commerce will meet this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the City Hall. The notice to members follows:

"As the cantonment appears to be assured, it is to your interest to come out and not only hear what the cantonment committee is doing, but also help in seeing to it that Nevada City is not left out in the cold. Other committee reports and new business will make this a busy evening."

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK OCTOBER 1 TO 8

Your own newspaper publisher would not come to you with this message But this organization the Californai Newspaper Publishers Association, in view of the approach of National Newspaper Week, feels that it can modestly call to your attention some pertinent thoughts.

We know that people are prone to take their newspapers for granted. Many subscribe, receive their newspaper regularly, read it and keep abreast of the news of the day. They have little time to give thought to the heritage back of the American newspaper and to the human work, integrity of purpose and earnest endeavor which have gone into the publication of that newspaper.

It is a rich heritage of service and protection to the people. Since publication of the first American newspaper, editors have accepted the challenge that their task is to perpetuate and preserve the American way of life; to endeavor to stamp out injustice; to walk beside the law in protecting people of every walk of life; to protect the masses, not the classes. When men, women or children think they have failed to find justice, they find a ready ear in the newspaper office, and if the cause is found worthy, this hardy champion demands justice.

It matters not whether an American be poor or rich. If society has treated him unfairly, any American newspaper, worthy of the name, will fight for his rights.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder at the difference
A single letter makes.
Why, s can turn one garden tool
Into a dozen rakes
And so the word Americans
Without that plural s,
Becomes at once American,
A term we all should stress.

I wonder often at the power of little letters to change the meaning of a word, a phrase or a sentence and send our minds trecking along this avenue of thought or that, in accordance with certain linguistic laws, which they rigidly enforce. Perhaps we might call them traffic officers of our language, standing at their posts, signaling our thoughts to take one road or another, make a right hand turn, or stop, consider and wait for the flash of a green light.

There are also insignificant little words, if, an, the and many others, which become important when linked with words of greater import.

Speak the words "an American" and instantly we visualize a fortunate man, who by accident of birth or through the processes of naturalization is a citizen of the land favored above all other lands upon the earth today.

This person spoken of as "an American" is a free man, protected in his inherent rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. His clothes, food and manner of walking, the books he reads and the creed he adopts, are all of his choosing. He may think his own thoughts, and give them utterance. He is safe from persecution—the constitution is his bulwark, the Bill of Rights, his shield and buckler, the starry flag his symbol of all those sacred rights and priviliges which make this mortal life worth living. Yes, this individual is "an American" but—is he American?

The man who is "an American," may be an un-
American American.

The man who is American, can never be an unAmerican
American.

At first glance that may seem like a trivial play upon words, but in it there there may be a germ of thought well worthy of consideration.

To be an American is indeed a blessed privilege, if the person appreciates the gifts of life and liberty assured him as a citizen of this great land; but without a realization of the priceless worth of his inheritance and the responsibilities of his guardianship, he cannot be truly American. If he allows the degrading influences of intolerance and racial prejudice to corrupt his mind and pollute his speech, he may be "an American." but most certainly, he is not American.

Uncle Silas says: "I gather from the public utterances of Senator Wheeler, that just as soon as his country goes to war he will support it one hundred per cent; but until it does, he will keep himself busy white washing certain prominent members of the America's Worst Committee and saying good words here and there for Adolph.—A. Merriam Conner.

RIGOLETTO TO BE SUNG OCT. 11 IN SACRAMENTO

Maestro Caetano Merola of the San Francisco Opera Company has announced the cast for "Rigoletto", Verdi's grand opera in three acts which will open the music season for Northern California on October 11. Lawrence Tibbett, California born, American trained baritone of the Metropolitan opera, concert, stage, radio and motion pictures, will sing the leading role of the ill fated hunchback jester, "Rigoletto."

Opposite him in the role of his daughter, "Gilda,' will be Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano who scored a hit last year as "Manon." Jussie Bjoerling, noted Swedish tenor of the Metropolitan will take the part of the "Duke of Mantua" and Irra Petino will be heard as "Maddalena." "Giovanna" will be Thelma Votipka, "Borsa" will be sung by Anthony Marlove, and "Marullo" will be by George Cehanovsky. Papi will conduct.

Rigoletto, first produced at Venice on March 1, 1851, is one of the world's favorite operas. It tells the story of the hunchback jester who seeks to protect his daughter from the evils of court life, and of the intrigues of the court of the Duke of Mantua and subsequent deaths of the jester and his daughter. It is one of Tibbett's favorite roles, and one for which he is most famous.

"Rigoletto" will be one of two operas to be heard by Northern Californians this season. The second will be "Madame Butterfly" which will be part of the regular music series and will be heard on October 25th. Season ticket holders on the regular series will be entitled to special rates on the "greater season" events which include "Rigoletto", Grace Moore in concert and the Ballet Russe.

Reservations for all events are being made now at the Ware-Hazelton box office in Weinstock-Lubin's, Sacramento.

DUCK HUNTING PROSPECTS GOOD

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 29.—(UP) The state division of fish and game today predicted good hunting during the annual duck season opening October 16 in quoting warden's reports that heavy flights of ducks have been seen in nearly all parts of the state.

However, the division said that duck sickness has been observed generally in the Tulare area, although it was believed the disease may not develop as badly as in previous years.

"Water temperatures are about the same as last year," a division report said, "but air temperatures average lower. Ducks arrived in the valley at approximately the same time as last year and in about the same numbers.

"Water conditions on all waterfowl areas are in good shape. There is more water surface throughout the entire duck regions than normally. Heavy flights of ducks have been reported in nearly all parts of the state. A small flock of white fronted geese came into the Gridley refuge in the middle of August.

The Diary Of A Very Small Pup

ROY GRIFFITHS DEETER

August 1st.
Oh-hum! Gosh—food. Gee, I am sleepy!

August 5th.
That's the best milk bar I know of. Quantity plus quality. Bit crowded though. Now for a nap.

August 10th.
Been noticing a large blob hovering around our box lately. It sort of coos at us in a silly way. Every once in a while it tickles my chest with a finger that's very red at the end.

August 12th.
Spoke to Sandra (she's my sister), about the blob today. She says it must be mother's mistress. Jeep (he's my brother), calls her Fat Stuff.

August 15th.
Looked around a bit today. Walked over to the end of our box. Nicely lined with blankets. Milk bar still! tops. Fat Stuff still coos and there are a couple of men that coo at us too, but deeper and not quite so silly. Ho-hum—lunch time I guess!

August 17th.
Took a walk today. Sandra's sort of haughty and says she needs her beauty sleep. She is pretty in her way. Jeep was busy trying to chew a bit of rubber. Fat Stuff picked me up and cuddled me. I tried to bite her nose, but the darn thing was so big I coudn't get hold of it.

August 20th.
Fat Stuff played with me today. I chewed her red finger nail, she seemed awfully pleased so I wagged my tail, she hollered so loud I decided to go off and catch a nap while she calmed down. The Big Man said today "Gosh, They are fat!" I looked at Sandra, she is sort of portly. Jeep looks trim though. I tried to look at my tail, but my tummy got in the way. Guess I'll have to watch my weight, oh well—I'll have just a very little nip and then take a nap.

August 25th.
Fat Stuff and the Big Man took us away from the milk bar today and introduced us to a plate of very good stuff. I got my face into it too far and blew bubbles through my nose. Sandra being a lady did a good job, but Jeep fell into the middle of it and got all sticky. Fat Stuff wiped him off, and Mother helped, but he tasted good all day.

August 30th.
Took a walk around the living room. My legs are awfully tired. I guess I will have to do something about my weight. Played with Fat Stuff's finger and finally got a good bite at her nose, she laughed and said "You little monkey." Fine thing! Sandra walks around with a great deal of dignity, but like most women she is sorta dumb. Jeep is a swell egg, he is getting pretty clever with that rubber ball of his, I'll have to try it, but I'm too sleepy just now.

September 5th.
A very pretty lady came today. She smelt nice and she has little hands with nails that are a pretty pink, quite a change after all the red I have seen. She seemed to like me a lot. She kissed me on the top of the head. She had a nice hamburger smell about her. She asked Fat Stuff my name, and F. S. said: "That's Whistle Britches." I barked "Fat Stuff" right back at her and they both laughed.

September 10th.
The Pretty Lady came again this morning. I listened to them talk. Fat Stuff seemed unhappy, she said: "This breaks my heart, but there is no one I would rather trust him to then you." I guess I am going away.

September 15th.
Pretty Lady came for me this afternoon. She had a nice new basket all lined with blue stuff. I kissed mother good bye, Sandra was asleep as usual, and Jeep was showing off with a bone. Rat Stuff seemed quite sad, so I bit her nose and wagged my tail and she hugged me quite hard. Not a bad guy, Fat Stuff. Pretty Lady put me in the basket and they took me out and put me on the seat of a sort of house on wheels that made a nice purring sound. That's good, I'd like to see mother again, and find out how Sandra turns out and if Jeep really grows up to be so athletic. It will be nice to see Big Man and bite Fat Stuff's nose again. Oh well! I guess this is where life begins, so I'll take a nap before the excitement starts.

FOREST SERVICE TIMBER HAS NEW MANAGER

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—The U. S. Forest Service today announced the retirement of Assistant Regional Forester T. D. Woodbury, chief of the Division of Timber Management for the 19 national forests of the California region.

Following his graduation from Yale 36 years ago, Mr. Woodbury won rapid promotion as federal forester in Colorado and California, and became timber management chief at San Francisco headquarters in 1910.

"Mr. Woodbury's administration of nearly 20 million acres of timber resources in California forests," commented Regional Forester S. B. Show, "followed a sound and far-sighted policy of timber conservation and wise utilization. During the past 32 years he authorized the harvesting of more than six billion feet of timber valued in excess of $15-000,000 and he directed the planting of nine million seedlinds."

Mr. Woodbury has been succeeded by P. D. Hanson, recent supervisor of the Lassen National Forest at Susanville, who comes to his new post at a time when national defense places heavy demands on timber products.

Vancouver, B. C.

This is a pretty important city both to Canada and the world. The Dominion's third largest metropolis, it boasts the third largest harbor on the globe. The British Empire's longest bridge spans the impressive Lions Gate, the narrow entrance to this magnificent, mile-wide body of water.

Within a fifteen mile radius of the heart of this city of a quarter million souls the country is almost as primitive as it was 150 years ago when Captain George Vancouver first put in here. The hills that he found covered with forest then are strewn with the homes, buildings, sawmills and canneries that help make Vancouver the metropolis of Western Canada today. But beyond city limits those forests still rise up to form some of the scenery for which British Columbia is famous and back of them tower snow clad mountains that dominate the entire scene. Foremost of the latter are the twin peaks. The Lions, which rise 5,400 feet almost from the placed shores of the sound, which is sheltered by the huge bulk of Vancouver Island, 250 miles long.

Within the shadow of sky scrapers, thousand acre Stanley Park offers a quiet retreat that might well be the center of a lost forest. Along the green fringes of this area are the cricket fields and bowling green so dear to the hearts of the British.

Indian villages with their ancient totem poles and primitive fish-drying racks continue to thrive back in the nearby inlets which form a system of great long fjords unequalled elsewhere on the North American Continent.

In spite of the fact that Vancouver is a rail center of note and a ship center catering to fifty different ocean steamship services cruising the seven seas, the city is a youngster. Incorporated but 55 years ago, it had to make two starts. Immediately and completely wiped out by fire, its population of 2,000 set about rebuilding. A year after Vancouver became the terminus of the Canadian Pacific —the first transcontinental railroad—and had erected the first three of the many saw mills around here now and had landed its first trans-Pacific cargo.—the beginning of a shipping industry that now extends from its colorful waterfront out to the ends of the earth.

Just south of Vancouver lies New Westminster, 30 years older and the first mainland city of British Columbia. It was founded during the Fraser River gold rush. Coming from that direction we traversed part of one of the most historic and romantic roads in America, the Cariboo. Built by Queen Victoria's Royal Engineers, or "Sappers," in 1865 to permit California miners to pioneer the richest gold camp the world has ever known, the Cariboo Road is a modern highway now and some of it will form a link in the International Highway that now runs from here to Mexico City and extends far north of Vancouver but has many tough miles to go before it completes an unbroken path from Alaska to Panama City and beyond.

When this long dreamed of roadway is finished, Vancouver, so important as a railroad and steamship center now, will acquire added importance as a key stopping point on the longest highway in the world.

Sally Robinson Becomes Bride At Impressively Beautiful Wedding

In a ceremony marked for its simplicity but impressively beautiful, Miss Sally Robinson became the bride of Robert Fulton at the Trinity Episcopal Church here at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The wedding was attended by prominent relatives and friends of both families from all parts of Nevada and California.

The ceremony was without question the most outstanding social event of the year in this city.

The marriage united a member of one of the pioneer families of this city and a member of a widely known San Francisco family.

The former Miss Robinson is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Robinson of Lovelock, Nev. She was born and reared in this city and upon completing her education began a career as a schoolteacher. The bride is a niece of Miss Savory Ford of this city and a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ford, the former a prominent attorney and at one time district attorney of Nevada County.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Betsy Bennett as maid of honor and Misses Ruth Rector, Margaret Fulton, Merle Young and Wilma Jones as bridesmaids.

John Fulton acted as the best man. Mrs. C. A. Lebbey sang "Because," accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mary Libbey, at the organ.

During the service Mr. and Mrs. Libbey sang "Oh, Promise Me." The wedding was performed by Rev. H. Thomas Pateman.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Savory Ford home on Broad Street.

The entire city joined with relatives and friends in wishing the couple a happy married life.

Fulton is a son of Mrs. John Fulton of Reno. His father, now deceased, was manager of the Idaho-Maryland Mine about 20 years ago. Fulton is a graduate mining engineer and is employed in Ely, Nevada.

The bride was beautifully attired for the wedding in a white satin gown with a low square neck line. Her veil, of white tulle, was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white bouvardia.

Aged Downieville Miner Succumbs To Illness

Funeral services were conducted in Downieville Saturday for Joseph Nipp, 84, resident of that community for the past 67 years, who died Friday after an illness of several months.

Nipp owned his own mining claims near Downieville. He was a native of Germany and has no known relatives in this country.

The funeral was held in the Downieville Methodist Church under the direction of the Holmes Funeral Home of Nevada City.

Rev. Anderson officiated. Burial was in the Downieville Cemetery.

WORK PROJECTS PREPARED FOR PEACE PERIOD

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 29.—(UP)—The state of California and its governmental subdivisions today were urged to submit to the Public Work Reserve a list of projects which will constitute a "reservoir for employment when the defense bubble bursts.

Terrell McKenzie, California PWR director with offices in San Francisco, said the federal agency would provide a "clearing house' for public works on a national scale and an "overall plan", graded according to relative need.

At a conference with representatives of the state division of public works, McKenzie revealed he will meet soon with city, county and irrigation districts to explain procedure of submitting projects.

In addition, he plans to appear at the annual convention of the California League of Municipalities here next month to explain the government's program.
